Yeah, I'm always hesitant to let them know our every move, but he has already heard we are coming and if we imply we something different the trust issues begin.

Thanks Cynthia and Mike. I will clarify the purpose of our trip next week with Rick; I'd hate for it to drum up more attention than it's worth.

Hi Rob,

I think we just tell them what we are in the listing comment period and there is no physical activity taking place at this time. There are negotiations that will take place. And we have been invited to a HB meeting. Not much else to give him.

Rob,

That's a good question! I would think that any sort of documentation the company provides to us regarding plans for the site might fall into the realm of negotiations, and we wouldn't want to release that. As to anything we might observe on a site visit - I don't know.

I've copied Mark and Rich on this response. Perhaps they can provide some guidance.

I'm not sure how to respond to this. Would we typically give this information to the media? Should I offer putting him on the public notice list? Would we send this type of information out to folks on the public notice list?

I understand you might be in the Columbia Falls area on April 16 perhaps to start looking over the CFAC site. Don't bring your skis, the local ski hill will be closed. We had an El Nino end to the season anyway.

If you were to see some activity in the CFAC site that would be of interest to the community, would you be able to report that to the media? I'm thinking about activity by a demolition company, or if CFAC gave you documents stating their plans to begin demolition soon. We're thinking CFAC might go ahead and get the buildings removed and leave the landfills for a later day. If so, that would be big news for locals.

Thanks for your help.
